BRIEF HISTORY, THIRTEENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY, N. G. P.

THROUGH THE COURTESY OF CAPTAIN LOUIS T. MATTES

DURING the summer of 1877 mob law reigned in the city of Scranton, Pa., until the first day of August, when fifty men of the "Citizens Corps" put to flight, by the effectual application of bullets, a mob of several thousand men bent upon destruction to life and property. The crack of their rifles had hardly died away before active steps were taken towards organizing a military force for the protection of the homes and industries of Scranton and vicinity, and on August 14, 1877, Major Espy, of General Osborne's staff, mustered into the National Guard of Pennsylvania a battalion of four companies, A, B, C and D, known as "The Scranton City Guard," and composed of the following named officers and enlisted men, representative of the city's best business, professional and social circles:

Within sixty days after the muster-in, a contract was let for the construction of an armory, which was completed in January, 1878; and within its walls (as well as on the rifle range and camp ground) has been carried on for nearly a quarter of a century, that active, aggressive, self-denying work which has placed the original "Scranton City Guard" and its successor, the Thirteenth Regiment, in the very front rank of the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

Previous to the Spring of 1878 no attention whatever had been given to rifle practice by the State military authorities, and it developed upon the Scranton City Guard, encouraged and spurred on by its able and aggressive commander, Major Henry M. Boies, to inaugurate systematic rifle practice; and the first "marksmen's badges" ever presented to her soldiers by the State of Pennsylvania were won by members of the Scranton battalion, and the cost of them was defrayed by their Scranton friends. The Thirteenth Regiment was the first organization in the Guard to qualify as marksmen its entire membership, which it did for a number of years in succession, and Major (since Colonel) Boies is justly entitled to be called the father of rifle practice in the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

LIEUT.-COLONEL FREDERICK W. STILLWELL

On August 14, 1878, the battalion celebrated its first anniversary by an excursion to Honesdale, Pa., where it met with a royal reception. Company A, with some members of the other companies, remained there for a week's encampment, and from that day to the present, many and varied have been the regiment's experiences on the tented field.

But the youngster battalion rapidly outgrew its swaddling clothes, and, with the Act of Assembly of 1878, came the opportunity to enlarge the organization and extend its protective power over a larger territory; and so it came to pass that on the 10th of October, 1878, the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. P., came into existence, with Henry M. Boies as its first Colonel, and the following companies, viz.: "The Scranton City Guard," Companies A, B. C and D; "Honesdale Guards," Company E; "Van Bergen Guards" (at Carbondale), Company F; "Telford Zouaves" (at Susquehanna), Company G; "Providence Rifles" (at Scranton), Company H, and a Gatling Gun Squad. Various changes in organization were necessary from time to time until, for several years prior to the Spanish-American War, the regiment had six companies, A, B, C, D, F and H, located at Scranton; Company E, at Honesdale, and Company G, at Montrose. At the present time eight companies are located at Scranton, one each at Montrose, Honesdale and Easton.

The first encampment of the regiment was at Long Branch, N. J., August 21 to 28, 1879, at which over 75 per cent. of the membership was present. The report of Colonel Boies so impressed the State authorities with the advantages of annual encampments for the entire Guard, that they were provided for the next year, and have ever snce been a part of the annual duty to be performed. In this, as in rifle practice, the Thirteenth led the way.

During the five years in which Col. Boies was in command the regiment forged steadily to the front, in spite of many difficulties and discouragements; and when in October, 1883, Col. Boies declined a re-election, Lieutenant-Colonel F. L. Hitchcock was elected Colonel, and the regiment continued its march, gaining new laurels year by year. Colonel Hitchcock was succeeded by Colonel Ezra H. Ripple, and he in turn by Colonel Henry A. Coursen, who was followed by the present commander, Colonel Louis A. Watres.

The Thirteenth Regiment has had its share of riot duty, serving for eighteen days at Homestead in 1892, under Colonel Ripple, and for fifteen days at Lattimer in 1897, under Lieut.-Col. Chas. C. Mattes. On April 27, 1898, in accordance with orders from the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, the regiment reported at Mt. Gretna. War had been declared against Spain; the President had called for volunteers; and on May 13th the Thirteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, was mustered into the United States service, "for the period of two years unless sooner discharged." After a few weeks at Mt. Gretna, while being equipped, the regiment was moved to Camp Alger, Va., where it remained until August 31st, when it removed to Camp Meade, at Middletown, Pa., and from there in October to Camp Mackenzie, at Augusta, Ga., by far the finest and most healthful camp of all. There the winter was spent in the ordinary routine of camp duties, the regiment being attached to the Third Brigade, First Division, Second Army Corps, and fully expecting to be on the move by December 1st for service in Cuba. Such was not to be the case, however, and in February, 1899, orders were received to prepare for muster-out, and on March 11, 1899, all rolls being ready and government property accounted for, the paymasters commenced their work, and in a short time the Thirteenth, as a volunteer regiment in the service of Uncle Sam, passed into history, and all hands started homewards. That the regiment saw no service on foreign soil was no fault of its own. The rank and file were ready for any service they might be ordered to perform, and there is no doubt that the fact of thousands upon thousands of trained and disciplined troops being mobilized in our home camps, ready for any call, had a great moral effect, not only upon other nations generally, but also in hastening the close of the war.

After the muster-out from the United States service, active steps were taken towards the reorganization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and the Thirteenth Regiment was reorganized with Louis A. Watres (former Lieutenant-Governor and State Senator) as its commanding officer. Colonel Watres had for some time been actively at work with the avowed determination that the Thirteenth should have a new armory that would be commensurate with its needs, second to none in the State and an ornament to the city of Scranton. That his efforts have been successful is evidenced by the magnificent building which now constitutes the home of the regiment, and the dedication of which this special number of "Our State Army and Navy" celebrates.

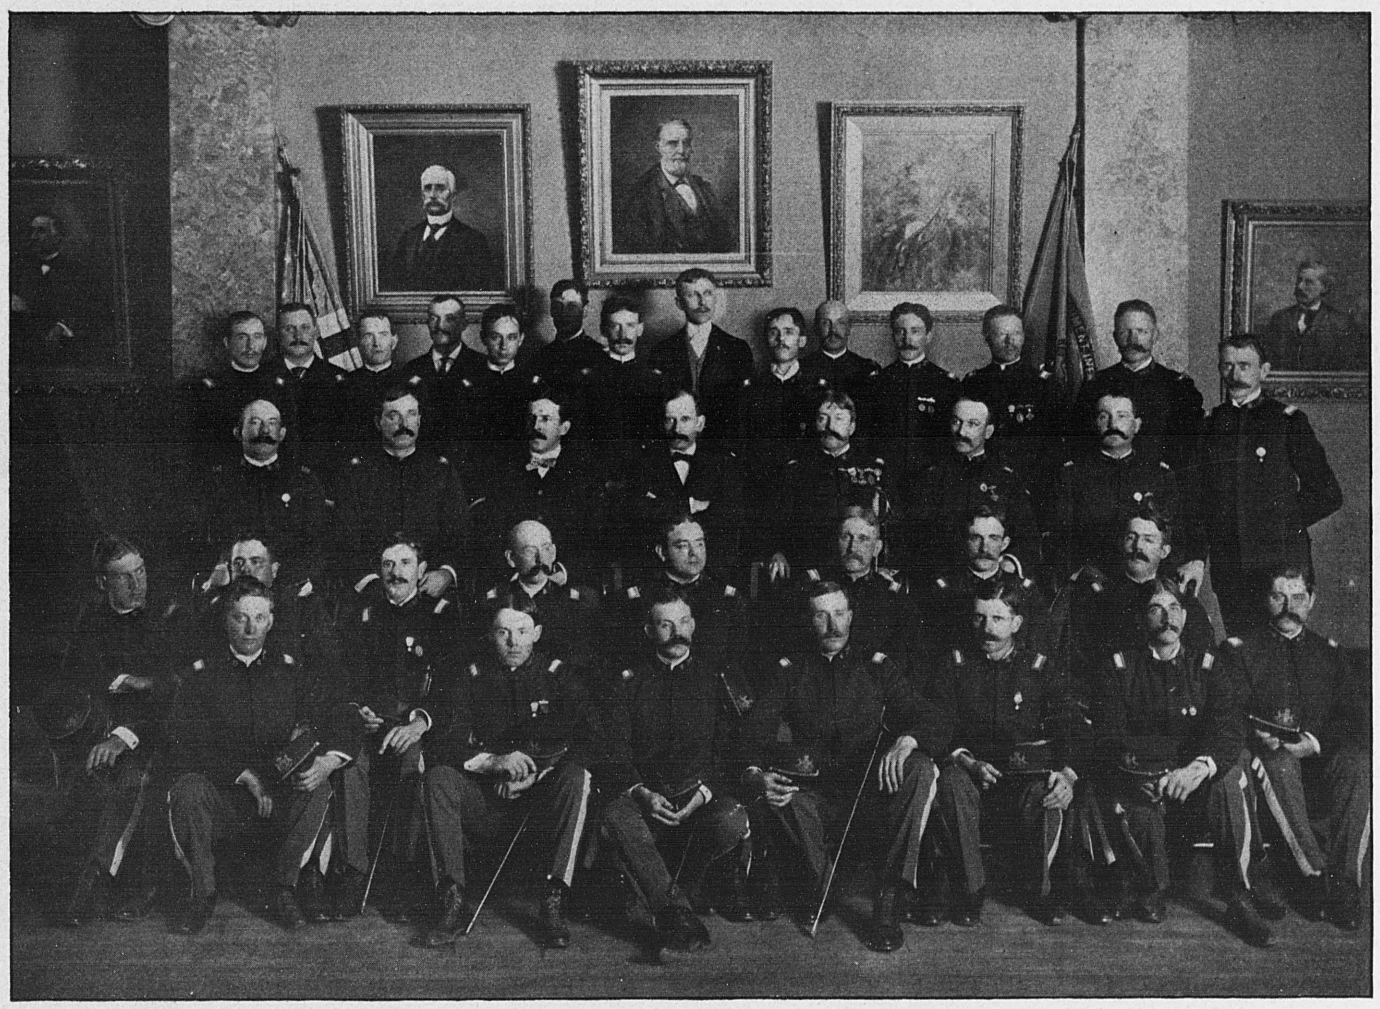
Among those who have been most active in laboring for the success of the new armory scheme, may be mentioned Lieut.-Col. Charles C. Mattes, now retired with an honorable record of twenty-one years of continuous service in the regiment. The armory property is vested in a Board of Trustees, and Col. Mattes as their representative, has had full supervision of the construction of the armory from start to finish, and he feels great pride in seeing the regiment to which he gave so many years of active service, and with which—as second in command—he volunteered during the war with Spain, at last quartered in this splendid home.



Assembly of Officers for the purpose of re-organizing the 13th Infantry after the Spanish-American War.

COLONELS L. A. WATRES and C. BOW DOUGHERTY in centre.

It is not within the scope of this article to attempt a description of the armory building. That must be left to an abler pen than the writer's, but our aim has been to present what seem to be interesting facts concerning the history of the regiment, many of which are personal recollections arising from fifteen years' service as enlisted man and commissioned officer.

Mob law in the Lackawanna Valley is a thing of the past. Its death knell was sounded when those fifty rifles spoke on August 1, 1877, and the absence of riots during the past twenty-four years has amply testified to the wisdom and foresight that led to the organization of "The Scranton City Guard." The modest armory erected in 1878 has done its part and done it well. As the Thirteenth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, takes possession of the finest armory in the State, may it be with new life and vigor infused into rank and file, and may its future course be marked with the highest success in every branch of military science, and the regiment maintain its proud place among the citizen soldiery of State and Nation.

COLONEL LOUIS A. WATRES

IN preparing a sketch of Col. L. A. Watres, it is difficult to decide whether to begin with his services to the State in a military capacity or his career as a Legislator and Lieutenant Governor, or to deal with his active, pushing and successful career as a lawyer and a business man. In all these capacities he has been conspicuous for his ability, and is a striking example of the American youth who starts life with no capital, but integrity, brains and perseverance.

His services to the State as an officer of the National Guard can scarcely be overestimated. He not only did much to bring the Thirteenth Regiment up to the high standard that made it famous throughout the State, but the entire Guard felt the influence of his inspiration and benefited by his enthusiastic work in its behalf. As General Inspector of Rifle Practice, he succeeded in having every member of the Guard qualify as a marksman and chiefly to his efforts is it due that the National Guard of Pennsylvania has for many years excelled the Guards of all other States in the Union as sharp-shooters. Those who have lived in this vicinity for any considerable length of time are conversant with the triumphs of Company A, of the Thirteenth Regiment, of which he was then Captain. It was the pride of the Regiment and under his captaincy won many trophies in competitive drills. Always kind to his men and solicitous for their comfort and well being he won their affectionate regard, at the same time never relinquishing the necessity for strict military discipline. His was a temperament that makes successful military commanders, and how well he wrought is still visible in the morale of the National Guard of this State.

Having been called to high civic honors, Col. Watres for a time severed his connection with the Guard. In August, 1898, after the Thirteenth Regiment had joined the volunteer service in the war with Spain, the Eleventh Regiment, N. G. P., was organized and Col. Watres was elected to its command, and the regiment at once took its position as the best disciplined and best drilled regiment of the Provisional Guard. When at the close of the late Spanish-American war the National Guard of the State required to be reorganized, Col. Watres was unanimously called to the command of the reorganized Thirteenth Regiment and is now at the head of that excellent organization. With others he was instrumental in securing a new armory for his regiment, the building being now completed. The Thirteenth Regiment will be housed in one of the finest homes of any regiment in Pennsylvania. When finished the building will have cost at least $300,000.

The necessity for the new armory has long been felt. The National Guard of Pennsylvania is practically a State police force, to be called into service only when breaches of the peace reach a stage when they are beyond the control of the civil officers. It is a standing protection to every citizen of the State, just as much as the Scranton police force is a protection to every resident of this city. As it preserves in its way the rights and property, and in some instances the lives of citizens, it should be looked upon as an organiof great importance owing to the vast and complicated legal interests of the county. In 1883 he was called to higher honors, being elected State Senator from the Democratic Twentieth Senatorial district. When his term expired he was re-elected by an increased majority and served in the Senate until 1890. In that year he was chosen Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania by a majority of over 22,000 votes, although the head of the ticket was defeated and Robert E. Pattison, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was elected by a large majority. As Lieutenant Governor he was president of the Senate and ex-officio president of the Board of Pardons. He was also vice-president of the Pennsylvania World's Fair Commission and chairman of its executive committee. Col. Watres also served a term as chairman of the Republican State Committee and has been prominently mentioned as the candidate of his party for Governor and United States Senator.

Col. Watres is a native of this county, having been born at Mount Vernon, now Winton, on April 21, 1851. His father was prominent in business and politics, and his mother was the gifted zation worthy of the moral and financial support of all good citizens, and with such men as Col. Watres in the van there is an assurance that it will never be used for any base purposes, or to the injury in any degree of the humblest resident of Pennsylvania. A person who would sneer at or interfere with the police force of Scranton in the discharge of duty would be accounted an unworthy citizen and might suffer heavy penalties. A person who interferes with the National Guard, or who stirs up against it prejudice and contempt is no less an unworthy citizen, and the practice deserves to be frowned upon and made odious.

It is a noteworthy fact that during its history the National Guard never killed a man in the many troubles they have been called upon to quell. Whatever killing was done, unfortunately, always occurred before the Guard arrived, or after they had left the scene of disturbance.

In civil life Col. Watres has held many offices of trust and responsibility. For nearly ten years he was County Solicitor, an office

"Stella of Lackawanna," whose contributions to the local press have been collected in an attractive volume entitled "Cobwebs." At an early age he was compelled to begin the battle of life. His first employment was about the coal mines operated by Jones, Simpson & Co., at Archbald, and the mines of John Jermyn, at Jermyn. He also worked about the mines in Olyphant, where he picked coal and later became weighmaster. Col. Watres therefore knows the hardships of laboring men and understands how to sympathize with them. As a large employer of labor now, this knowledge and experience of his early days is shown in the generous and manly treatment of those employed by him.

While still a young man he became teller of the Merchants' and Mechanics' Bank of this city. In 1874 he became cashier of the Scranton Savings Bank and Trust Company, now the County Savings Bank and Trust Company, of which he is now president. During his leisure time he read law under the direction of the late Judge Handley, and in 1878 he took up the active practice of his profession in which he soon became eminently successful.

Colonel Watres is largely interested in various industries and enterprises in this city and throughout the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys. He is president of the Brookside Coal Company, the Spring Brook Water Supply Company, the Mansfield Water Company and the Scranton and Pittston Traction Company.

Personally Colonel Watres is a genial gentleman, easy of approach, notwithstanding his varied interests which require so much of his time and attention. He is recognized as one of Scranton's foremost citizens, who won honors because he deserved them, and those who know him best appreciate him most.

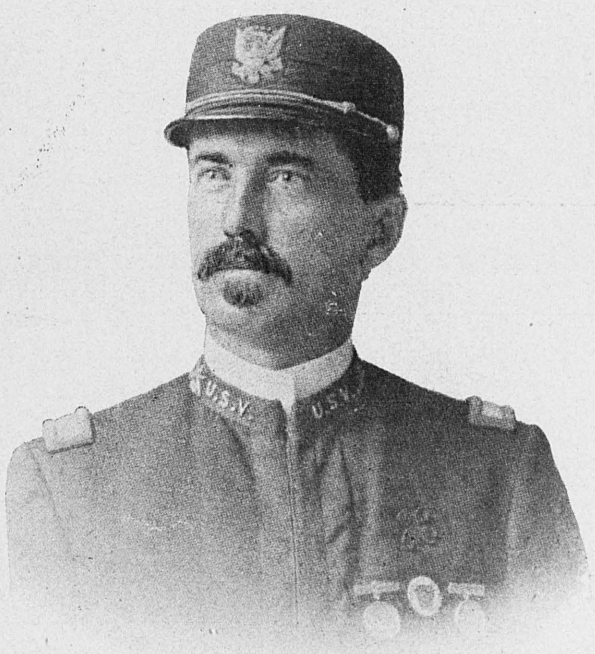
MAJOR B. RUSH FIELD

The Major is a native of Easton, having been born there November 3, 1861. He is a son of the late Dr. C. C. Field, who for fifty years was an eminent surgeon in that section of the State.

nexed to Easton. His majority of nearly 200 for the Democratic ticket speaks for itself of his popularity and for the confidence that his fellow citizens reposed in him.

Major Field is now serving his second term as President of the Jacksonian Democratic Association of the city, which numbers over three hundred members on its roll.

At one time in his life Dr. Field accomplished much in a literary way. His "Medical Thoughts of Shakespeare" speedily ran through a first edition in 1883 and an enlarged edition was published in 1884. He is also the author of "Wine, Women and Song of Shakespeare and Byron" (1888); "Medico-Shakespearian Fanaticism" (1888); "Fielding's Unconscious Use of Shakespeare" (1892), besides contributing to literary journals. For a number of years he has been the Honorary Librarian of the Shakespeare Society of New York City, and was selected by that society to edit Volume V. (Romeo and Juliet) of their "Bankside Edition of Shakespeare," a monumental task of the society, consisting of twenty volumes. His volume was published in 1889. He is an honorary member of "The Writer's



MAJOR FRANK ROBLING, JR.
13TH INFANTRY

The subject of this sketch was educated in the public schools of Easton, at Lafayette College, and at the University of Pennsylvania, from which latter institution he received his medical degree in 1883. He founded the Easton Medical Society in 1890; was physician to the Northampton County Prison during 1886 and 1887; has been for a number of years one of the Coroner's physicians, and is frequently called as an expert in medico-legal cases in the courts of the county. He first took an interest in municipal affairs of his native city in 1890, when he was elected to the Common branch of the City Councils, served two years and was re-elected in 1892. During each of the years he served he was chosen President of the body, and in the Spring of 1893 was elected on the Democratic ticket as Mayor of the City. He served during 1893, 1894 and 1895. In 1899 he was again elected Mayor and is now serving his second three-year term. In each of the mayoralty contests Mayor Field had as his opponents prominent business men of the city who were popular in their party and who worked hard in the canvass. In his recent campaign Major Field overcame the 700 Republican majority of his predecessor and an adverse majority in South Easton then an-

Club of the Lehigh Valley," and a member of numerous secret societies and social clubs.

The Mayor has also taken great interest in military affairs. Even as a youth (1876) he was one of the founders of the Easton Gray Cadets and served as their captain for three years.

Shortly after the war with Spain broke out Dr. Field was elected Captain of a company of volunteers raised in the city, and the company was offered to President McKinley in answer to his second call for troops. On July 12, 1898, the company was mustered into the National Guard of Pennsylvania as Company "E," Eleventh Regiment. During that year, on August 20th, at a regimental election held in Harrisburg, Dr. Field was elected Major of the Third Battalion, with companies at Easton, Pottsville, Reading and Lebanon. On the reorganization of the National Guard the Eleventh and Thirteenth Regiments were combined under the Thirteenth, and at a regimental election held August 25, 1899, at Scranton, Major Field was re-elected. He commands the second Battalion, with companies at Easton, Montrose, Honesdale and Tunkhannock.

THE ARMORY TRUSTEES

ORIGINALLY the title to the armory property of the Scranton City Guard was vested in a corporation known as the Scranton City Guard Association. This association was governed by five directors or trustees. This method of administration having proven cumbersome the Association, on the 23d day of January, 1890, directed that the title be transferred to five trustees, chosen at the same meeting. This transfer was duly made on the 21st day of February, 1890, by means of a deed of trust prepared by Herman Osthaus, Esq. The title thus became vested in the five trustees chosen by the Association, to wit: Col. Henry M. Boies, Col. Ezra H. Ripple, Col. Herman Osthaus, Major William S. Millar and Captain James Moir, the present Mayor of Scranton. Col. Boies was chosen president of the trustees and Col. Herman Osthaus secretary and treasurer. They still hold these offices.

By the terms of the deed of trust these five trustees hold the title to the armory property permanently and administer the property for the use and benefit of the Scranton City Guard. They have full power to designate from time to time what companies shall constitute the Scranton City Guard, and to fill vacancies in their own number.

At the time of this transfer to the trustees the property consisted of the old armory and four lots on Adams avenue. Subsequently the trustees purchased two adjoining lots, making six lots in all. In the early spring of the year 1893 a vigorous effort was made by the trustees to raise a fund of $125,000 for a new armory, but after about forty thousand dollars had been subscribed the financial panic of that year put a sudden end to the effort.

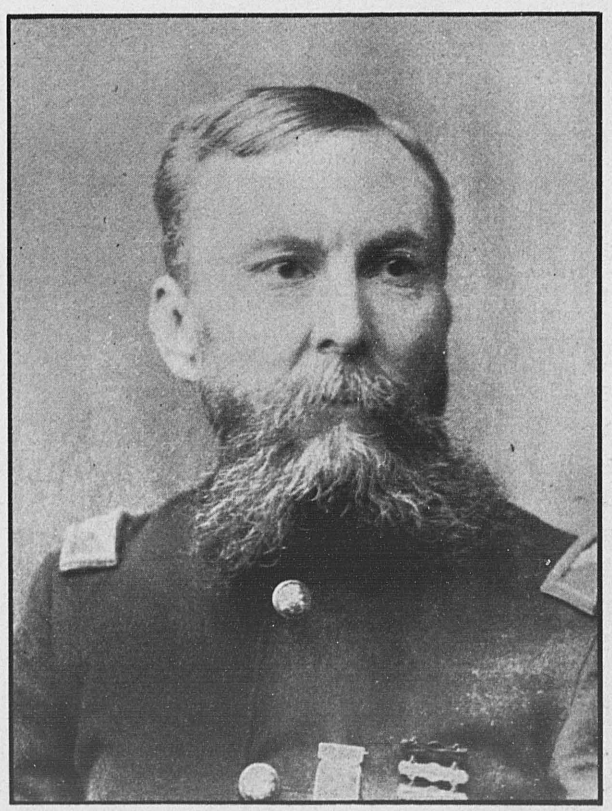
After the ending of the Spanish war, in August, 1899, the effort was renewed. As a result of much urging by the trustees, Col. L. A. Watres had consented to accept the command of the provisional Eleventh Regiment and of the reorganized Thirteenth Regiment for the purpose, in their judgment, of making a new armory possible. It is largely due to the efforts of Col. Watres that the Scranton City Guard will now have the finest armory in Pennsylvania, an armory so large that ten thousand people can be comfortably seated in its drill-room. The subscription paper was drawn by Col. Osthaus, in August, 1899, and the subscriptions were obtained by Col. Boies and Col. Watres within the next few months. On August 1, 1900, the contract for the building of the new armory was signed and on the same day the first sod was turned.

The new armory is built upon a plat of nine and one-half lots, on Adams avenue, half a mile north of the old armory. When completed it will have cost $200,000. Like the old armory, the title to this property is vested in the five trustees already named, upon the same terms and conditions.

For eleven years now the five original trustees of the Scranton City Guard have faithfully and harmoniously labored together for the benefit of the Scranton City Guard. That their labor has not been in vain is shown by the result. That result is the finest armory in the State, for what many believe to be the best regiment in the State. The members of that splendid regiment and the hundred thousand citizens of the magnificent young city of Scranton will many times thank them for their work and will heartily wish the trustees many happy years of joint labor in the days to come.

COLONEL HERMAN OSTHAUS

Col. Osthaus was born of German parentage, at Overton, Sullivan County, Pa. He was educated in the public schools, and at Allegheny College and the Universities of Goettingen and Heidelberg, in Germany, and at the Law School in the University of Michigan. He is a lawyer by profession and is the Treasurer of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company of Scranton. His military service extended over fifteen years, eleven years in the Thirteenth Regiment and four years as General Inspector of Rifle Practice on the staff of Governor Pattison. For more than fifteen years he has been one of the five trustees of the Scranton City Guard, and during all this time has been secretary and treasurer of the trustees. As such he has taken an active part in the building of the splendid new armory for the Scranton City Guard and has been the custodian of the new armory fund.



COLONEL F. L. HITCHCOCK
Formerly 13th Regiment

LIEUT. COLONEL CHAS. C. MATTES

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles C. Mattes is justly entitled to a large share of the glory and honor arising from the planning and building of the new armory of the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. P., at Scranton, Pa. As a member of the Building Committee he was requested by the trustees to act as Superintendent of Construction; the building bears witness to the thoroughness of his inspection.

Colonel Mattes can justly be proud of his record of twenty-one years of service as a National Guardsman. In April, 1878, he enlisted as a private in Company "C," of Scranton City Guards, and has since then served as Corporal, Sergeant, Regimental Sergeant-Major, Adjutant, First Lieutenant and Captain of Company "A," Thirteenth Regiment; Regimental Quartermaster, Major and Lieutenant-Colonel. He has taken an active part in twenty-one annual encampments; was Regimental Quartermaster during the Homestead riot campaign in 1892; commanded the Thirteenth Regiment during the Hazelton riots at Lattimer, in 1897, and in May, 1898, was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel of the Thirteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served with that regiment in the Spanish War at Camps Mead and Alger, in the First Division of the Second Army Corps.

Colonel Mattes, like most officers of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania Infantry, has always taken great pride in rifle practice, and is a veteran sharp-shooter with twenty-one annual qualification scores to his credit; a record unsurpassed in the annals of Pennsylvania marksmen.

Colonel Mattes is a veteran companion of the Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States. He is a lineal descendant of Captain Daniel Platt, who served with distinction in the Continental line and with Connecticut troops from 1775 to 1779, and is also a lineal descendant of Andreas Herster, who, as First Sergeant of Captain John Arndt's Company of Pennsylvania Militia from Easton, Pa., was captured in 1776 at the battle of Long Island, and died in the British prison ship "Jersey," December 25, 1776.

LIEUT. COLONEL CHAS. C. MATTES
13th Regiment Retired
CHAIRMAN BUSINESS COMMITTEE

COLONEL F. L. HITCHCOCK

Colonel F. L. Hitchcock, the second Colonel of the Thirteenth Infantry, needs little introduction as a soldier. It was under his administration that every member of the Thirteenth Regiment became a qualified marksman. While he has not been actively engaged for many years in the Guard, he still retains a warm spot for his old command. Col. Hitchcock is in the real estate and fire insurance business with his son, H. P. Hitchcock. By profession he is a counsellor at law, and it is stated that the Municipal League of the city of Scranton proposes presenting his name for judgeship.

MAJOR EVERETT WARREN

Major Everett Warren, a member of the Executive Committee, has long been identified with matters military, serving as a private in Company "A," Thirteenth Infantry, from September 8, 1881, to May 25, 1885. He was appointed Sergeant Major May 25, 1886, and First Lieutenant and Adjutant October 1, 1886, and on July 14, 1887, he was commissioned Major and Judge Advocate of the Third Brigade, on General Gobin's staff, being reappointed June 26, 1890, retiring from the service June 15, 1891. During his ten years of faithful service he was greatly interested in rifle practice. Major Warren is a member of the law firm of Willard, Warren & Knapp; is also a director in the County Savings Bank and Trust Co., and in the Title Guarantee and Trust Co.

MAJOR J. W. OAKFORD

Major James W. Oakford, Chairman of the Executive Committee, is one of the best known former officers in the State.

Shortly after the organization of the Thirteenth Infantry, he enlisted in Company "A." This was October 1, 1879, and after many years of service was appointed First Lieutenant and Regimental Quartermaster, being reappointed October 7, 1893. On August 14, 1894, he was commissioned Major and Judge Advocate of the Third Brigade, and reappointed June 8, 1895, and again reappointed on July 16, 1898, and June 27, 1899. Owing to pressure of business the latter commission was declined July 22, 1899.

Major Oakford has greatly assisted the armory trustees in arranging the dedication details. In professional life he is one of the best known lawyers in the eastern section of the State.

Major William S. Millar, Assistant Adjutant General of the Third Brigade, and for many years Brigade Inspector, was elected Trustee of the Scranton City Guard Association nearly 20 years ago. He was one of the original members of Company "B."

L. C. Holden, the architect of the new armory, is one of the best known in his profession. His office is located in the St. James building, 1133 Broadway, New York City. He may be justly proud of this fortress, which he designed, as it is the first and only one of its kind in this great Keystone State.

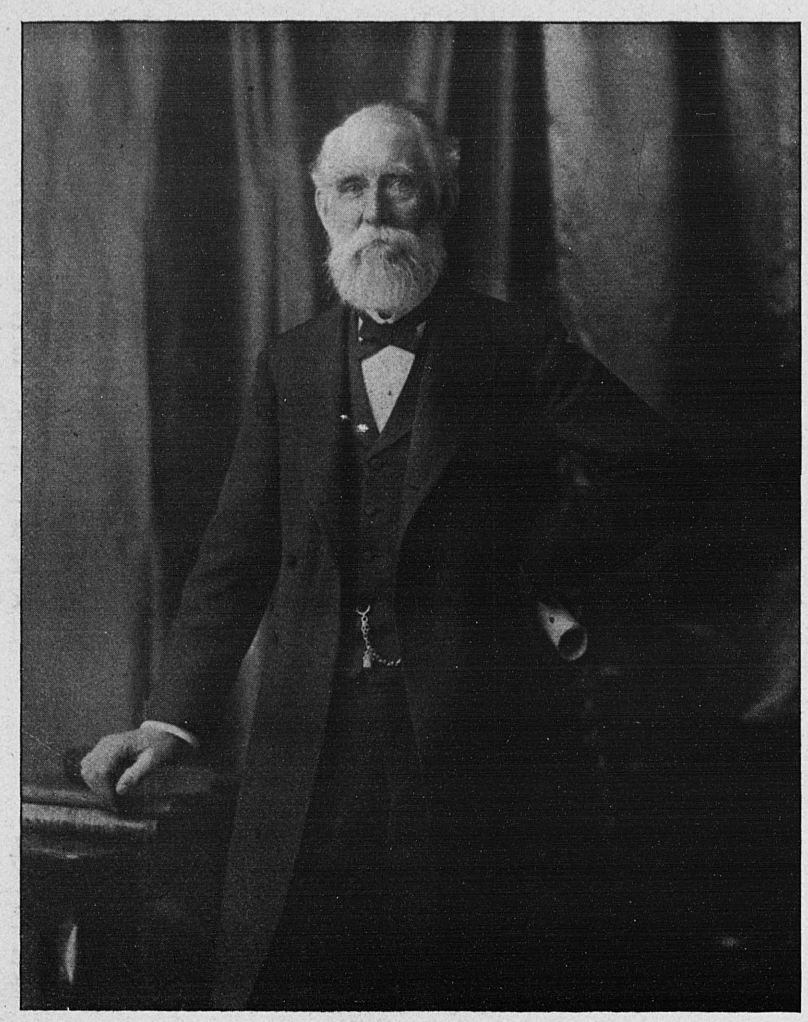
COLONEL EZRA H. RIPPLE

Colonel Ezra H. Ripple, Assistant Adjutant General, N. G. P., whose portrait graces this issue of "Our State Army and Navy" Journal, is a self-made man, as well as a sterling soldier. He was born at Mauch Chunk, Pa., February 14, 1842, where he lived until his removal to Scranton, in 1857, where he now resides, one of that city's most honored and respected citizens. He has always taken an active part in every popular enterprise connected with the "Electric City." His heart and purse have been freely opened to the call of charity, but his benevolence has been exercised quietly and without ostentation.

Colonel Ripple was educated chiefly at the public schools, but attended Wyoming Seminary for a time, and after the war took a business course at Eastman's College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to fit himself for the active business career he has since so successfully pursued. For a number of years he was the trusted employee of one of the largest individual coal companies in the Lackawanna Valley, and is still connected with its management.

He has held two important civil positions, in the county and city of his adoption. In both instances the office sought the man. In 1879, by an overwhelming majority, he was elected County Treasurer, serving a full term. The faithfulness with which he discharged this trust, as well as every other private and public trust of his life, made him much sought after by the friends of honest government. In January, 1886, he was elected mayor, by the largest majority ever given any candidate for a political office since Scranton was a city. So successfully did he fulfill the chief executive office of the city, that a popular movement was on foot to induce him to accept a second term; but having satisfied himself that there would be grave questions of his eligibility, under the new municipal law, he declined the honor. During Colonel Ripple's administration as mayor, Scranton has prospered beyond all precedent; and to say that his administration has been a success, would be but to mildly express it. Great improvement was made in everything that goes to make a first-class city—all under his guiding hand.

MAJOR J. W. OAKFORD
Chairman Executive Committee



HON. ALFRED HAND

The war or military history of Colonel Ripple is a strange mixture of doing and suffering. When only twenty, he enlisted, and went to the front; being present at the great battles of Antietam and Gettysburg, in 1862 and 1863, never shirking an order, nor hesitating to encounter danger. In March, 1864, he re-enlisted in the Fifty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers, then commanded by Colonel Henry M. Hoyt. But his military activity was speedily terminated in a night attack on Fort Johnson, in Charlestown Harbor, where, with Colonel Hoyt and Lieutenant-Colonel Conyngham, he was taken prisoner. Then began a period of suffering, whose history, if truly and fully told, would stir men's souls. His exposure and privations while confined in the infamous stockade at Andersonville, where for three months he suffered agony at the hands of brutal and heartless captors; his confinement in the stockade at Florence, S. C., for months; his escape and subsequent re-capture, when almost in the Union lines, by savage bloodhounds and merciless men; how the brave man, unarmed and with bare feet, struggled for life with the fierce dogs, and gashed and mangled by their teeth, was tied by a rope to the saddle of one of the brute's more brutal masters, and compelled to run back to the prison pen before the loaded musket of a guard; his being left to die or recover, friendless and without proper food or medical aid; form a chapter of horrible incidents which cannot be adequately described. A just God willed that the brave man should live through it all; and after a siege of terrible fever, during which, in his delirium, he fought again the dreadful bloodhounds, he ultimately recovered. Colonel Ripple was regularly discharged at Camp Parole, Annapolis, after the surrender of Lee.

Let us pass to a more pleasant military history.

During the Scranton riots, in August, 1877, Colonel Ripple organized a company of volunteers, and was chosen their captain. The conflict with and dispersion of the mob led to the formation of the Scranton City Guard (four companies), in which he became Captain of Company "D." Upon the consolidation of the City Guard with the Thirteenth Regiment, he was chosen Major, and promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel, October, 1880. In October, 1888, he was elected Colonel of the now renowned Thirteenth, which position he so ably filled.

The Thirteenth has always been a progressive regiment, yet under command of Colonel Ripple, it has taken longer strides in practical soldiering than at any time during its prior history.

Under Colonel Boies (the first commander, and the father of marksmanship in the N. G. P.), it gained distinction by having more qualified marksmen than the rest of the N. G. P. combined. Under Colonel Hitchcock, its second head, it gained the marked honor of having every man in it a qualified marksman. While under Colonel Ripple the regiment has not only qualified every man as a marksman, but nearly 50 per cent. upon its rolls are sharpshooters.

The course of study instituted by Colonel Ripple, in the officers' school, added new interest in the regiment. Captain John Calef, U. S. A., who was detailed by the government to inspect the N. G. P., makes special mention, in his report, of the officers' schools of the Thirteenth, and heartily commends Colonel Ripple's system to the regular and citizen soldiery.

Colonel Ripple is a conscientious and painstaking officer, honorable, temperate and a christian; the soul of generosity. Although of kind disposition, he exacts strict military discipline and moral habits from officers and men. There is not an officer or man in the Thirteenth who does not esteem and admire him, and who would not die fighting for the honor, the reputation or the life of Colonel Ezra H. Ripple.

Henry Wherum, a member of the Reception Committee, is a staunch admirer of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, fully appreciating the worth of the organization as a protective body to the community. Mr. Wherum is the general manager of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company. It was on the floor above his office that the Scranton City Guard was first formed and drilled.

A. W. Dickson, one of the Reception Committee and a charter member of Company "D," Scranton City Guard, served in its ranks for eight years. For 35 years he was connected with the Weston Mill Company, and for the last 25 years he has been Treasurer and Manager of that concern, which has been succeeded by the Dickson Mill and Grain Company, of which he is now President.

IT is hoped that the dedication of the magnificent structure, the future home of the Thirteenth Infantry, may prove an incentive to public spirited gentlemen in every section of the State, to see that their local commands are housed in like structures. Scranton, a city of the second class, has electrified the State in the erection of such a modern fortress. The swimming pool in itself cost nearly $10,000. The rifle range is another innovation with a range of 100 yards, equipped with the latest electrical appliances. The gallant Thirteenth Infantry, with its many comforts and advantages, should be second to none in personnel and efficiency in the State.

COLONEL H. A. COURSEN

Col. H. A. Coursen passed his early days upon a farm among the hills of old Sussex, northern county of New Jersey. He finished his education at the Blairstown Academy and entered at once into mercantile life, which was given up in June, 1861. He then enlisted in Company "I," Seventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, taking a second lieutenancy in same. For a long time he served as Adjutant; was made First Lieutenant of Company "A," and acted as Assistant Quartermaster of the Third Army Corps, under General I. Daniel Sickles. He was commissioned Captain of Company "E," Twenty-third New Jersey Volunteers, taking part in nearly every engagement of the Army of the Potomac, from the siege of Yorktown and battle of Williamsburg, May 4 and 5, 1862, to second battle of Fredericksburg and Salem Church, May 3 and 4, 1863. On June 27, 1863, he was mustered out of service, and in the fall of 1864 came to Scranton. On January 10, 1865, he engaged in business and was married March 29, 1865. He continued in his mercantile pursuits until March, 1895. He was commissioned Captain of Company "C" at the organization of the Scranton City Guard, August 14, 1877, also Major, Lieutenant-Colonel and Colonel, occupying the latter position when the Regiment was called into the service of the Spanish-American War early in May, 1898, serving until March 11, 1899, when the Regiment was mustered out of the United States service.

In July, 1899, he resigned as Colonel of the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. P., after a continuous service of nearly twenty-two years in the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

MAJOR WM. G. FULTON

Major William G. Fulton, one of the Reception Committee and late Surgeon of our gallant Thirteenth Infantry, was born in Nova Scotia; graduated in medicine at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, 1886; enlisted as a private in Company "D," Thirteenth Regiment, February, 1888; appointed First Lieutenant and Assistant Surgeon, March 19, 1888, and Surgeon, June, 1892, just before the Homestead service.

After ten years' service as a commissioned officer, he was placed on the retired list in 1898, when the Thirteenth was reorganized. After its return from the Spanish-American War, was again placed on the active list and assigned to the Thirteenth as Surgeon, where he served until January of the present year, when, upon application, he was again transferred to the retired list. Major Fulton takes a deep interest in the National Guard and Thirteenth Regiment and new armory.

HON. ALFRED HAND

Hon. Alfred Hand was born at Honesdale, Wayne County, Pa., March 26, 1835. His parents, originally from Greene County, N. Y., were among the earliest settlers of Honesdale. On his father's side he is descended from John Hand, who came from Stanstede, England, to Southampton, L. I., before 1645, and on his mother's (Catharine Chapman), from Robert Chapman, who came from Hull, England, and settled at the mouth of the Connecticut in 1635. Alfred Hand received his early education at Honesdale, surrounded by its anthracite industries; and at eighteen entered Yale College, from which he was graduated in 1857. He then entered the law office of William and William H. Jessup, with whom he formed the partnership of Jessup & Hand after his admission to the bar, November 2, 1859; and in 1866 he was connected in a similar manner with Isaac J. Post, a fellow law student and graduate of the same college, the relation continuing until March, 1879, when he was appointed by Gov. Hoyt Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District of Pennsylvania, comprising Luzerne and Lackawanna counties. In the foundation and early history of Lackawanna county he took a prominent part, and on its formation into a separate district, was transferred to it as Judge, and subsequently elected for a period of ten years from January, 1880. He also rendered important service in the erection of the county buildings. While presiding judge of the Court of Common Pleas, he was appointed by Governor Beaver, July 31, 1888, to fill the unexpired term of Judge Trunkey, deceased, on the Supreme bench, and until January 1, 1889, ably performed the important work. At the expiration of that time he returned to his professional practice, the extent of which is evidenced by the reports of the States. In politics he had been a Republican from the organization of the party, but had held no public office other than the judicial ones. From 1872 until 1879 he was president of the Third National Bank of Scranton, and for years has been connected with the Lackawanna Hospital, as president and director. From the foundation of the Pennsylvania Oral School for deaf mutes, at Scranton, at that time the only institution of its kind in the State, he has been its president, and directed the erection of its handsome building. He has also been for several years a trustee of Lafayette College. Since 1866 he has been an elder in the Presbyterian Church, and has several times represented the Presbytery of Lackawanna in the General Assembly, serving on several important committees. He has been twice married: in 1861 to Anna Jessup, daughter of Wm. Jessup, and in 1873 to Helen E. Sanderson, of Beloit, Wis. He has eight children. As a judge he is characterized by clearness, and independent and impartial views.

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW ARMORY

PRACTICALLY every detail of the beautiful new armory of the Thirteenth Regiment has been completed. The great structure is laid out in an almost perfect manner for the purpose for which it is to be used. It has a frontage of 160 feet on Adams avenue, and on Myrtle street takes up the entire block to Jefferson avenue. The style of architecture is massive, yet graceful, embracing the outlines of fortress and castle, and is one well suited to the character of the building. The front is heavy and dignified in appearance, and is broken by towers at either end and on each side of the main entrance to the building. The towers are circular and have a battlement effect that adds greatly to the martial appearance of the building. The base of the building is rough hewn stone, as is also the trimmings of the facade and the cappings of the turrets. The body of the building is selected red brick, and the blending of grey stone with it makes a very pretty combination.

LANSING C. HOLDEN
Architect New Armory

What is known as the administration portion of the building has, as stated above, a frontage of 160 feet on Adams avenue, running north from the corner of Myrtle street. It is four stories high and sixty feet deep. Back of this is the gigantic drill room, with its unbroken expanse of asphalted floor, 146x240 feet, and high arched ceiling, the pinnacle of which is on a level with the top of the administration building. The building is largely of stone, brick and steel, and is as near fire proof as possible.

In its entirety the building is 316 feet in length, running back along Myrtle street to Jefferson avenue. The grade at Adams and Myrtle is thirty feet lower than at Jefferson, and while the drill room floor is fifteen feet above the level of Adams avenue it is fifteen feet below the grade of Jefferson avenue. This has necessitated the construction of a passage along the side for half a block and also along the back of the building. There is ten feet from the retaining wall to the building, and the wall is protected by an iron railing.

Midway in the block on Myrtle street the drill room floor is exactly at grade, and there is a great gateway, also flanked towers with battlement tops, and a similar tower is at Jefferson and Myrtle. These towers are more than ornaments. The side walls of the building project about five feet above the point where the roof meets them and alongside of this wall is a walk where soldiers can patrol from one tower to another. Should it ever become necessary to defend the armory it can be done very successfully.

The feature of the Adams avenue front is the main entrance. Entering the lobby you can proceed up broad flights of stairs to the drill room floor and go right ahead. On the Adams avenue ground floor is the gymnasium, 56x24 feet, swimming tank, shower baths, toilet rooms and locker rooms. These are on the Myrtle street side of the building. On the other side is the rifle range of 100 yards, with waiting room for marksmen. The targets will be at the Jefferson avenue end of the building below ground. On this floor, also, will be a field equipment room for each of the eight companies and regimental headquarters. There will also be rooms for the non-commissioned staff, regimental quartermaster, armorer, janitor and inspector of rifle practice.

Two wide stairways of iron and slate lead to the second or drill room floor. They open on to a corridor eight feet eight inches wide, and across the corridor is an entrance seventeen feet wide leading to the drill room, which has an area of about 35,000 square feet in the clear. In the administration portion of the building on this floor are eight company rooms and eight equipment rooms, which open directly into the drill room. The equipment rooms are 17x18 feet.

At either end of the drill room, the floor of which is asphalted, are two galleries, one at the Jefferson and one at the Adams avenue end of the room. The roof of the drill room is sustained by great structural curved arches, five feet thick, which begin down below the level of the drill room floor. Besides the entrance, seventeen feet wide, leading toward the front of the building, there is the gateway, fourteen feet wide on Myrtle street, and two doors that will open into the passageway at Jefferson avenue. The gallery at the Jefferson avenue end will discharge its contents through a door at the level of Jefferson avenue. Access to the opposite gallery will be by doors from the third floor of the administration building. The ventilation of this room is perfect. There is a row of windows in the Myrtle street wall, two rows of windows in the curved roof and ventilators in the pinnacle of the room.

On the third floor in the Adams avenue and Myrtle street corner will be three rooms for the use of the Regimental Veterans' Association. This floor is approached from the second by two stairways seven feet wide, which open on a corridor eight feet eight inches wide, which runs the entire width of the building. This floor has apartments which will be used as a library for the officers, colonel's private office, a room for the adjutant and his clerks, rooms for the battalion commanders, battalion adjutants, regimental surgeons and a small room for physical examination.

On the fourth floor are three unfurnished rooms, which will be used for squad drill rooms. There is another room for the use of the band, and a well appointed kitchen and pantry with a dumb waiter running from the kitchen down to the first floor. It is a building that should delight the heart of a citizen soldier.

JAMES H. TORREY

James H. Torrey, A. M., a member of the Committee of Invitation, was born in Delhi, Delaware County, N. Y., June 16, 1851. He received his education in the schools of the different places, where his father held pastorates, and for some time was a student in the high school at Ann Arbor. In 1869 he entered Amherst, where he remained until the close of the junior year. In 1872 he came to Scranton to begin the study of law. Though not a graduate of the college the degree of A. M. was conferred on him by Amherst in 1888. His legal studies were commenced under Willard and Royce, and completed under E. B. Sturges. He was admitted to the bar in October, 1876, at Wilkes-Barre.

During the course of his studies he was employed as weighmaster by the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company. His specialty in profession are civil cases and corporation business.

Mr. Torrey, like many other prominent men in Scranton, became enthused in matters military and enlisted in the Scranton City Guard at its organization in 1877, and served as a member of Company "A" until 1885, when he was discharged.

In 1886 Mr. Torrey was appointed by the Board of Trade as a delegate to the Convention that framed the municipal act of 1887. In politics he is a Republican, and a popular speaker in local and State compaigns. He served several terms as City Solicitor. At the end of his second term, in 1898, he formed a partnership with Mr. C. H. Wells. He is a charter member of the Lackawanna Law and Library Association, President of the Y. M. C. A. of Scranton, and a ruling elder in the Second Presbyterian Church.

T. H. WATKINS

One of the popular members of the Executive Committee is Mr. T. H. Watkins, who has always been greatly interested in the welfare of the Thirteenth Regiment and the National Guard of Pennsylvania in general. He was born in Pittston, Pa., 1860; graduated from the Wyoming Commercial College in 1874; since then he has been connected with Anthracite mining until recently. He is now largely interested in the Webster Coal and Coke Co., operating in Cambria County, Pa. He is a director in the Colliery Engineering Company, Third National Bank, Title Guarantee and Trust Co., Scranton Lace Company, and New Mexico Railway Company. He is also President of the Scranton and Country Clubs, of Scranton, and is regarded as one of the progressive representative business men in Lackawanna County.

Mr. E. L. Fuller, one of the executive committee, has for many years been interested in the local soldiery and everything that pertains to advance the best interests of the city of Scranton. He is a widely known and esteemed capitalist. He is the President of the Retsof Mining Company; The Carbondale Gas Company; The Girard Coal Company of Mt. Carmel, Pa.; Avery Rock Salt Mining Company; The Genesee and Wyoming Railroad and the Seneca Coal Company, miners and shippers of anthracite coal.

CONRAD SCHROEDER

Conrad Schroeder, the well-known contractor and builder, was awarded the contract for the building of the new Thirteenth Regiment Armory just one year ago. Every detail in the construction has been fully carried out and the armory trustees are greatly pleased with the result of Mr. Schroeder's work.

Among the many other buildings erected by Mr. Schroeder are the following: Hotel Jermyn, High School Building, Nears Building, Traders Bank, Commonwealth Building, Connell Building, Court House, Oral School, City Building, building of Scranton Republican, Board of Trade, Ella Park Church, Presbyterian parsonage, Moses Taylor Hospital, Lackawanna County Jail and the residences of Judge Hand and Mr. T. H. Watkins.

MAJOR J. RIDGWAY WRIGHT

Major J. Ridgway Wright, of Wilkes-Barre, was for many years the Inspector of the Third Brigade, preceding Major Miller. As an inspecting officer he had few equals in the State, and many officers and men will recall the eagle-eye and the terror that he struck to their hearts on the evening of their inspections. Major Wright first enlisted as a musician in Company "I," now Company "D," Ninth Regiment Infantry, in February, 1880. He re-enlisted in the same company in April, 1884, and on May 3d of the same year he was unanimously elected Second Lieutenant. On December 30, 1884, he was commissioned First Lieutenant and Regimental Adjutant, and reappointed June 20, 1885. On March 20, 1890, he was commissioned Major and Brigade Inspector, and reappointed June 26th of the same year, retiring with the expiration of his commission, June 3, 1895.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL F. W. STILLWELL.

One of the promising field officers in the Guard is Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Stillwell. He is very popular among the rank and file. When quite a youth, in 1885, he enlisted in Company "A" of the Thirteenth Regiment, July 5, 1886. He was appointed Corporal and Sergeant, January 22, 1888, and received his first commission as Second Lieutenant, January 14, 1889; promoted Captain, January 22, 1894; Major, April 9, 1897, and Lieutenant-Colonel, August 25, 1899. He served as Major and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry.

MAJOR GEORGE H. WHITNEY
Now Regimental Commissary

MAJOR WM. G. FULTON

LIEUT. EZRA H. RIPPLE, JR.

The military career of Ezra H. Ripple, Jr., son of Colonel Ripple, started at Pennsylvania Military College, at Chester, in the fall of 1894. He took four years course and graduated in June, 1898, with a degree of C. E.

The school, or college, stands very high in its military work, being second to none, except West Point. While every one has to take infantry instructions, the cavalry school is usually made up of from thirty to forty, of which he was one for four years. At the time of the Spanish-American War he went to Mount Gretna and enlisted as a private in Company "D," Thirteenth Regiment.

While the chances for seeing service in this regiment were no brighter than others, he felt he should join, as his father had long been connected with it, and was in fact the first Captain of Company "D." He enlisted May 10, 1898, and was made Corporal July 1st, serving with this rank until he was mustered out in the following March.

When the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. P., was reorganized, in July, 1899, he enlisted and was made Quartermaster Sergeant of Company "D," which rank he held until the following November, when the company elected him Second Lieutenant. On May 14, 1900, he was made First Lieutenant, which rank he now holds.

In February, 1900, the War Department sent to the Pennsylvania Military College for the names of two graduates for Second Lieutenants in the Eleventh Volunteer Cavalry. He was offered one of these, which he refused, having in view at that time the study of law, which he is now pursuing.

During the volunteer service he was Captain of the Regimental foot ball team, and played in the game for the championship of the Second Army Corps in Augusta, Ga., on December 26, 1898, which game they won from the First Maryland Regiment (2-0). He is very much interested in the athletics of the regiment and intends doing what he can to arouse enthusiasm in that direction. With the facilities offered by the new armory they have hopes of making athletics quite a feature of attraction.

CAPTAIN LOUIS T. MATTES
Formerly Adjutant 13th Infantry

LIEUT. W. E. GUNSTER
Secretary Committee

CHARLES S. WESTON.

Charles S. Weston was born in Carbondale, Pa., August 25, 1860. Since 1861 he has been a resident of Scranton, where he was educated in the public schools, and at the School of the Lackawanna. In 1876 he entered the Granville Military Academy at North Granville, N. Y., where he graduated two years later, and entered the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., graduating with the class of 1882 with the degree of Civil Engineer.

A few months later Mr. Weston entered the employ of The Delaware and Hudson Canal Company as Civil Engineer, in which capacity he remained until 1895, when he was appointed Assistant General Agent of the Real Estate Department of that company. In February, 1889, he was promoted to be General Agent of the Real Estate Department, assuming entire supervision of the company's property on all of its lines, including its mining and canal property.

This position Mr. Weston still holds, and from time to time his duties have assumed broader scope, including at the present time entire charge of all matters pertaining to taxation and insurance of the company's property.

At the time of his appointment as General Agent of The Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, Mr. Weston became President of The Northern Coal and Iron Company, owners of all the coal mines and breakers operated by The Delaware and Hudson Canal Company south of Scranton, and owners of the railroad between Scranton and Wilkes-Barre.

Mr. Weston is officially connected with various other corporations and enterprises. He is President of The Empire Grain and Elevator Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., President of The Riverton Mills Company, of Riverton, Va., and President of The Dodson Signal Lamp and Lantern Company, of Scranton, Pa. He is also a Director in the following corporations: The Moosic Powder Company, The Weston Mill Company, The Dickson Manufacturing Company, The Wilson Lumber and Milling Company, The Lackawanna Trust and Safe Deposit Company, The Scranton Lace Curtain Company, The Stowers Pork Packing and Provision Company, The Carbondale Gas Company, The Consolidated Water Supply Company, and The Hudson River Ore and Iron Company, also a Director of The Scranton Club, and The Country Club of Scranton.

Mr. Weston was a member of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, serving as a Private, then as a Corporal, and finally as Second Lieutenant of Company "H," Thirteenth Regiment.

COLONEL GEORGE SANDERSON.

Colonel George Sanderson was one of the original members of the Scranton City Guard, and carried a rifle in Company "D." On November 29, 1878, he was appointed Captain and Commissary, and had charge of the Gatling Gun Squad, and was Inspector of Rifle Practice. On July 15, 1879, he was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel and Division Inspector of Rifle Practice, on the staff of General Hartranft. As such he was virtually General Inspector of Rifle Practice on account of the disabling of Colonel Riddle, who, by an unfortunate accident, lost a leg. On February 23, 1883, he was appointed Colonel and General Inspector of Rifle Practice on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, Governor Hoyt, and subsequently reappointed by Governor Pattison, resigning December 10, 1884. He was the first active General Inspector of Rifle Practice in Pennsylvania, and it may well be said that he is the father of rifle practice in the State, having laid the foundation amid great difficulties for the future pre-eminence of our National Guard in this respect. He is a member of "Sons of the Revolution" and other societies.

JAMES A. LANSING.

James A. Lansing, like many other prominent men in the city of Scranton, is thoroughly interested in the Thirteenth Infantry. He was born in northern New York, October 17, 1851, and comes of Holland Dutch paternal ancestry, the oldest settlers in Albany (New York State), and of Scotch and English maternal ancestry. He came to Scranton nearly 20 years ago, and has been identified with its industrial and commercial development. He is President of both the Scranton Stove Works and Board of Trade. He has been a member of Select Council for more than five years, and represents the Seventeenth Ward in that body. He is married and has one child.

J. A. LANSING.

J. S. SWISHER.

Mr. J. S. Swisher, the subject of the illustration on page 25, is the District Passenger Agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and is one of the ablest and best known passenger men in the railroad service. He first entered the service of the C. R. R. of N. J. 25 years ago, as agent at Moosic, then called Springbrook.

He filled this position for five years, until promotion gradually raised him to the important position of District Passenger Agent, which he now holds, with headquarters at Scranton. Mr. Swisher was a co-worker and close adviser of the late General Passenger Agent, Mr. H. P. Baldwin, with whom he served over twenty years.

It is needless to say Mr. Swisher is familiar with every portion of the Central railroad. It was he who originated Mt. Park, the most beautiful and most popular excursion ground in northeast Pennsylvania.

He was educated at the country and public schools, and later graduated from the Wyoming Seminary. There is no railroad official held in higher esteem than Mr. Swisher by the Central Railroad Company, with whom his services have been one continuous line of success.

One of the best-known and most popular members of the Reception Committee is Mr. Charles Robinson, who has been identified with the business interests of Scranton since 1876, and is one of the successful and representative men of the city. As a public official he is esteemed and has the confidence of this community. With his father and brothers he established the brewing business which, after the death of the senior Robinson, was carried on under the name of E. Robinson until 1893, and since that time has been conducted under the title of E. Robinson's Sons. The firm occupies one of the most modern breweries of the day, which is located on North Seventh street. It has a dimension of 300 x 150 feet. The entire plant is operated by electricity, and has a capacity of 125,000 barrels per annum, being the largest output in this section of the State. While Mr. Robinson is essentially a business man he gives a great deal of his time in furthering the interests of his constituents. He is greatly interested in political matters and an acknowledged leader in Democracy. In connection with his political record it might be stated that it is largely due to his influence that the Democratic State Convention was held in Scranton at the time Governor Pattison was nominated for a second term. At this convention he was tendered the nomination of Lieutenant Governor. Pressure of business and personal interest compelled him to decline the honor. As Chairman of the county and member of the State Central and Executive Committees his labors have been most effective. In 1888 he was chosen State Presidential Elector, and the same year was elected Sheriff of Lackawanna County. He is also a member of Select Council from the Fourteenth Ward, in which capacity he served for two terms. He also acted as Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, and Finance and School Committee. He is a member of the Scranton Board of Trade.

He was born in Scranton, April 12, 1855. The subject of this review is a son of Jacob and a brother of August Robinson. He was educated in New York and Furst's Military College, from which he graduated. Fraternally, Mr. Robinson is associated with Schiller Lodge, No. 345, Free and Accepted Masons, the Scranton Consistory and Lulu Temple of Philadelphia. He is also identified with the Order of Elks and numerous other benevolent organizations. Mr. Robinson has always taken a great interest in the Thirteenth Regiment Infantry and the National Guard of Pennsylvania in general.

CAPTAIN DOLPH B. ATHERTON

Captain Dolph B. Atherton was born in Montrose, Susquehanna County, July 22, 1858, and moved with his parents to Scranton, April 1, 1865. His early life was spent in the public schools of Scranton. At the age of 14 he accepted a position with the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co., as weighmaster, where he remained until 1882, when he was offered a position as bookkeeper for the Green Ridge Iron Works, of Scranton, Pa., continuing there until 1894; the last five years of which time he was General Manager of the Works.

In February, 1894, he was elected Secretary of the Scranton Board of Trade, which position he still holds.

On September 9, 1898, he was appointed Adjutant of the Eleventh Regiment, commanded by Col. L. A. Watres. After the return of the Thirteenth Regiment from the service in the Spanish-American War and the subsequent reorganization of that Regiment, he was again tendered the position of Adjutant, which he accepted on August 25, 1899; he has shown remarkable ability as a departmental officer, especially for the limited experience he has had in military matters; his ability as an Adjutant is proving invaluable to Col. Watres.

LIEUTENANT WILLIAM L. DODGE

Lieutenant William L. Dodge, Company "E," Thirteenth Regiment, is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, being mustered into the United States service May 12, 1898, and mustered out with the Regiment March 11, 1899. He first enlisted in the State service April 30, 1888, and was appointed Corporal October 28, 1889; Sergeant, July 13, 1891; Second Lieutenant, June 21, 1897; First Lieutenant, November 8, 1897, and was re-elected April 18, 1901.

Lieutenant Dodge is regarded as one of the best tacticians in the Thirteenth Regiment and has a promising future before him in the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

He and his brother are very successful in the confectionery and bakery business.

Captain John W. Kambeck is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, commanding Company "B," Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is the senior Captain in the present organization and is regarded as an excellent drillmaster and tactician.

LIEUTENANT F. H. CLEMONS

Lieutenant Clemons is another of Scranton's representative citizens who shouldered the gun in the Scranton City Guard. Enlisting as a Private in Company "C," August 14, 1877, he was made Corporal, October, 1877; Sergeant, September 29, 1879; Regimental Sergeant Major, May 14, 1880; First Lieutenant and Regimental Adjutant, Thirteenth Regiment Infantry, January 22, 1881, resigning his commission July 16, 1881.

Lieutenant Clemons is a progressive business man, being identified with several prominent concerns and is regarded as one of the political leaders of this community.

LIEUTENANT WALTER E. GUNSTER

Lieutenant Walter E. Gunster was born in Scranton, Pa., and a graduate of Princeton University, 1894, being admitted to the Lackawanna County Bar Association in 1896. He enlisted in Company "A" of the Thirteenth Infantry, March 31, 1895; was appointed Corporal June 7, 1897; was enrolled as Corporal in the Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, April 28, 1898; appointed Second Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant, Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, May 5, 1898; mustered into the United States service, May 13, 1898; was appointed Acting Regimental Quartermaster and Commissary Officer and Ordnance Officer, September 24, 1898, and mustered out with his regiment March 11, 1899. He again enlisted in Company "A," Thirteenth Infantry, N. G. P., upon its reorganization, July 10, 1899, and on September 10, 1899, he was appointed and commissioned First Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant and assigned to the First Battalion.

THOMAS E. CLARK

Thomas E. Clark, one of the Reception Committee, was born in the State of Indiana. In 1863, at the age of 13, he enlisted as a musician in Company "A," 124th Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered out of service in October, 1865. His regiment was engaged in all the principal battles of the Atlanta campaign and the closing campaign in North Carolina. It will be seen from the above that Mr. Clark is one of the youngest veterans of the civil strife.

After graduating at college, he entered the railway service, serving in various capacities from train dispatcher to superintendent of transportation, superintendent, general superintendent, and general manager. These connections were mostly on western lines. At present he is General Superintendent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. He is a thorough executive and is doing much to place the D. L. & W. in the foremost ranks of railroads.

The office of the city treasurer of Scranton is an important one and it has a good incumbent in Edmund J. Robinson, who possesses all the acumen so essential to an official dealing with the many details of the position. Mr. Robinson belongs to a family noted for progressiveness. He enjoys the esteem and confidence of the entire community and serves the city faithfully and well. Always courteous and willing to oblige, no one who has business with him can fail to note his promptness in grasping a subject and the keenness with which he is able to decide a question. He is alive to the welfare and advancement of Scranton, and in all lines of endeavor he is eminently successful.

WILLIAM H. TAYLOR

Mr. William H. Taylor, a member of the executive committee, was born in Paterson, New Jersey, September 30, 1859, and located in Scranton, 1884. He is the proprietor of the Scranton Supply and Machinery Co., dealers in machinery and tools, railroad, mine, mill and electrical supplies.

Mr. Taylor is prominent and influential in business circles and widely esteemed. One of his largest establishments is located in Allentown, Pa. He is also identified with the Hazleton Machinery and Supply Co., and is President of the St. Clair and Franklin Coal Co. He has long been a staunch admirer and a particular friend to the Thirteenth Infantry.

It is certainly a source of great pleasure to the National Guard to have such public spirited and representative gentlemen as Mr. William H. Taylor interested in their welfare.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

The origin and location in Scranton, Pa., of the International Correspondence Schools, are due to the demand by the miners of Pennsylvania for special education to help them pass the mine-law examinations.

The Colliery Engineer and Metal Miner (now Mines and Minerals), the leading mining and metallurgical journal of this country, was then, and is at the present time, occupied exclusively with discussions of mining methods and mine machinery, designed to educate miners and mine officials. This created such a desire for education that, in 1891, Mr. T. J. Foster, the President, prepared and advertised Correspondence Courses of Instruction in Coal Mining. No expense was spared to make the instruction papers thorough, clear, and concise.

Since then other courses have been added, over 300,000 students have been enrolled, and instruction is now given in 40 trades and engineering professions, as well as in ornamental design, commercial and English branches.

The Schools are owned by The Colliery Engineer Company, proprietors of the mining publications above mentioned. The remarkable success of the institution is one of the greatest educational achievements of the century. Over 2,100 persons are employed in the various departments.

The results that have been attained under the I. C. S. system are the cause of the Schools' remarkable growth. Through the thorough, practical, and up-to-date instruction furnished by the Schools, carpenters have become architects; machinists have become mechanical engineers; surveyors have become civil engineers; electrical workers have become electrical engineers; firemen and laborers have become steam engineers; while thousands of others have improved their prospects and positions through their studies.

The officers of the Schools are T. J. Foster, President; R. J. Foster, Vice-President; Elmer H. Lawall, Treasurer; Madison F. Larkin, Assistant Treasurer; Stanley P. Allen, Secretary.

MAJOR FRANK ROBLING, JR.

Major Frank Robling, Jr., is one of the crack shots of the State. For several years he was on the State and regimental teams and on the individual match at Creedmoor and Sea Girt. He won the all-comers and Kuser prizes two seasons. He has also been a prize winner in several of the brigade and regimental matches.

Major Robling is a thorough disciplinarian. In addition to his military service he is Chief of Police of the city of Scranton.

His first enlistment was in Company "C," Thirteenth Infantry, November 9, 1882, and on June 9, 1885, he was appointed Corporal; Sergeant, June 25, 1889; First Sergeant, March 3, 1891; commissioned Second Lieutenant, December 20, 1892; First Lieutenant, June 19, 1894; Captain, November 22, 1895, and Major, August 25, 1899. During the Spanish-American War he commanded Company "C," Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, from May 12, 1898, until March 11, 1899, when he was mustered out with the Company.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM A RAUB

Captain William A. Raub, Company "L," Thirteenth Infantry, is one of the oldest members of the Regiment in point of continuous service. He first enlisted in Company "C," November 9, 1880; was appointed Corporal May 20, 1884; Sergeant, July 6, 1885; First Sergeant, December 20, 1892; Second Lieutenant, June 19, 1894; First Lieutenant, November 22, 1895, and Captain, Company "G," Eleventh Regiment (now "L" of the Thirteenth Infantry), July 20, 1898.

CAPTAIN N. E. BIGELOW

Captain N. E. Bigelow, commanding Company "E," Thirteenth Infantry, located at Honesdale, enlisted March 17, 1894, serving in the ranks until March 17, 1897. During the Spanish-American War, when it was expected that the provisional regiments would be mustered into the United States service on the third call, he enlisted in Company "L" of the Eleventh Regiment. This was July 30, 1898, and on August 4, 1898, he was appointed First Sergeant. On March 11, 1899, he was unanimously elected Second Lieutenant and commissioned First Lieutenant November 14, 1899, and officially elected Captain November 15, 1901.

Captain Bigelow is an officer of the new school and is bringing his Company up to a high standard of efficiency. He is particularly fortunate in having so able an officer as Lieutenant Dodge associated with him.

In civil life Captain Bigelow is associated with the National Elevator and Machine Company of Honesdale.

MAJOR THOMAS F PENMAN

Major Thomas F. Penman, one of the reception committee and an original member of the Scranton City Guard, was identified with the State service for many years. He first enlisted in 1877, and step by step went through several grades from a Private to a Major. His original enlistment was in Company "C," August 14, 1877. Subsequently he was appointed Corporal, and on July 1, 1878, he received the Sergeant chevrons. On April 24, 1879, he was elected Second Lieutenant, and on August 3, 1880, First Lieutenant. The Captain's bars came to him unanimously on November 6, 1883. On April 4, 1884, he was appointed Major and Ordnance Officer of the Third Brigade, his commission expiring by reason of resignation of Brigadier General J. K. Sigfried, who was succeeded by Brigadier General J. P. S. Gobin, June 1, 1885.

In civil life Major Penman is an official in the Internal Revenue Department.

MAJOR GEO. H. WHITNEY

Major Whitney, who is now Regimental Commissary of the Thirteenth Infantry, is one of the veterans of Colonel Watres' command. He is a native of Honesdale and is a most highly respected citizen. He has been in the livery business since 1876 with his brother, Horace T. Whitney, and is now in prosperous circumstances.

He is one of the original members of Company "E," enlisting upon its formation, August 23, 1878. Under Captain Bentley, promotions were infrequent, the first non-commissioned officers being selected almost exclusively from among members who had been in the army during the war or who had been at military schools.

Major Whitney received his Corporal chevrons August 14, 1879, serving in that capacity for nearly four years. Steadily, however, he moved up the list until July 29, 1882, he was made Sergeant, a promotion earned by faithful service. During twelve years of this enlistment he never missed a drill or roll call. As time went on, the first members declined to re-enlist after their terms had expired. It was then that Major Whitney, with three or four other members, made a gallant effort to save the Company from dissolution and induced Judge Wilson to accept the Captaincy. Sergeant Stanton was chosen First Lieutenant and Whitney as Second Lieutenant, they all being commissioned on the same day, April 1, 1884. He was made First Lieutenant on March 23, 1885; Captain, April 12, 1886; was re-elected Captain, April 13, 1891; made Major, July 6, 1893; Ordnance Officer, Third Brigade, January 29, 1899. His commission expiring May 9, 1899, he was appointed Regimental Commissary, September 11, 1899.

CAPT. LOUIS T. MATTES

Captain Louis T. Mattes (one of the printing committee), formerly Adjutant of the Thirteenth Infantry, has been greatly devoted to the regiment for many years. He enlisted in Company "D" of the Scranton City Guard, October 3, 1877, serving as a "marker," then as fifer and bugler. Finally he took up the rifle.

In January, 1881, he was appointed Sergeant, temporarily leaving the service in 1882. He again enlisted in Company "A," March 25, 1889; was appointed Corporal, May 12, 1890; Sergeant, November 2, 1891; Battalion Adjutant, June 22, 1893; reappointed, October 12, 1893, and April 29, 1895. He was appointed Regimental Adjutant, July 15, 1895, and as such was mustered into the United States service at Mt. Gretna, May 5, 1898, serving in the Thirteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He was Acting Assistant Adjutant General, Third Brigade, First Division, Second Army Corps, at Camp Alger, Virginia. He also served at Camp Meade, Pa., and Camp McKenzie, Augusta, Ga., and was mustered out with the regiment, March 11, 1899. He contracted typhoid fever while at Camp Meade and was laid up for three months. At the reorganization of the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. P., June 6, 1899, he was commissioned Captain and Adjutant, and is now on the retired list of officers in the State.

LIEUT. GUY RELPH
Company B, 13th Infantry

CAPT. JOSEPH F. HELRIGLE
Company C, 13th Infantry

LUTHER KELLER

In chronicling the career of Luther Keller appears the history of one of Scranton's youngest business men, nevertheless a self-made and successful citizen, and one who merits the popularity and respect accorded him. He is engaged in the lime, cement, plaster and building material trade with office and distributing depot on West Lackawanna avenue. In the city's mercantile and commercial circles he enjoys a high rank, and his experience as a business man is typical of the energy and push which made possible the Scranton of to-day.

He was born near Stroudsburg, Monroe County, in 1850. His early boyhood life was spent working on a farm and acquiring an elementary education in district and public schools which, with a spirit of pluck and progress, was his only foundation for the success and prominence which later accompanied his experience in the business world. Desirous of choosing a wider field he left Monroe County when sixteen years of age and came to Scranton, where, in 1866, he entered the employ of Keller & Co., who were engaged in the harness business. From the date of his arrival in Scranton he was observing, industrious and provident, and acquired a knowledge of men and local commercial affairs which he applied to good advantage nine years later, when he engaged in business for himself.

In 1875, his twenty-fifth year, he started as a manufacturer of lime, with large quarries and works at Portland, Pa., which he owns and operates at the present time. From the beginning he has not relaxed in business activity and undivided attention to his business which, in volume and diversity of material, is not exceeded by any similar establishment in this section of the State. This condition is due in a great measure to his strict integrity, accommodating nature and alertness. His business, like many other large Scranton concerns, had a small beginning, but has grown and extended in proportion to the stride and development of the city. To-day Mr. Keller and his business are each a synonym of Scranton's leading citizenry and prominent commercial interests.

He has from the beginning had faith in the Electric City to attain its present position and has never failed to use his personal effort and invest his money in purely local enterprises. He is largely interested in mercantile and other interests, among which may be mentioned the Third National Bank and the Tribune Publishing Company, in both of which he is a director. In 1895 he was honored by the residents of the Seventeenth Ward by an election to the Common Council of the city. He served as President in 1900, and is now the oldest member, from point of service, of any member in that branch of the city government. His name has been prominently mentioned as a probable candidate for Recorder.

From the full standpoint of public spirit in the strict and literal interpretation of the sentiment, no resident of Scranton with the same means at his command, has done more to cause and continue the growth of the city than the subject of this sketch. He has ever been willing to experience even personal inconvenience and sacrifice that some commercial object be attained which would redound to the profit of the city of his adoption. This fact has been forcibly shown by his work in the Board of Trade, the organization which has done most in raising the mercantile interests and standing of Scranton. In this association he has figured among its leading and most influential members who have devoted time, money and effort from a spirit born of loyalty and public duty. He is assigned to service on many of its important committees. He served as President of the Board of Trade in 1898-9. Personally and in social life he is popular and esteemed. He is a member of the Penn Avenue Baptist Church and Superintendent of its Sunday-school, which is one of the largest in the city. His handsome residence is delightfully located on Clay avenue near Vine street.

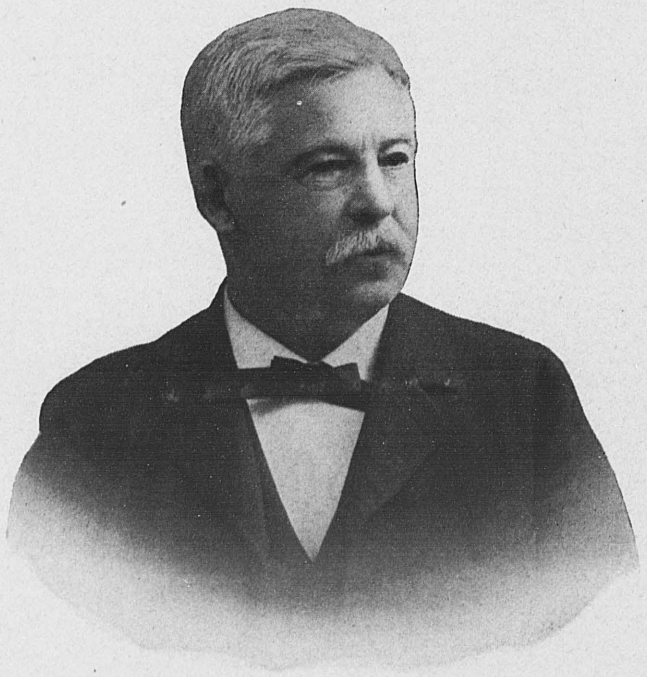
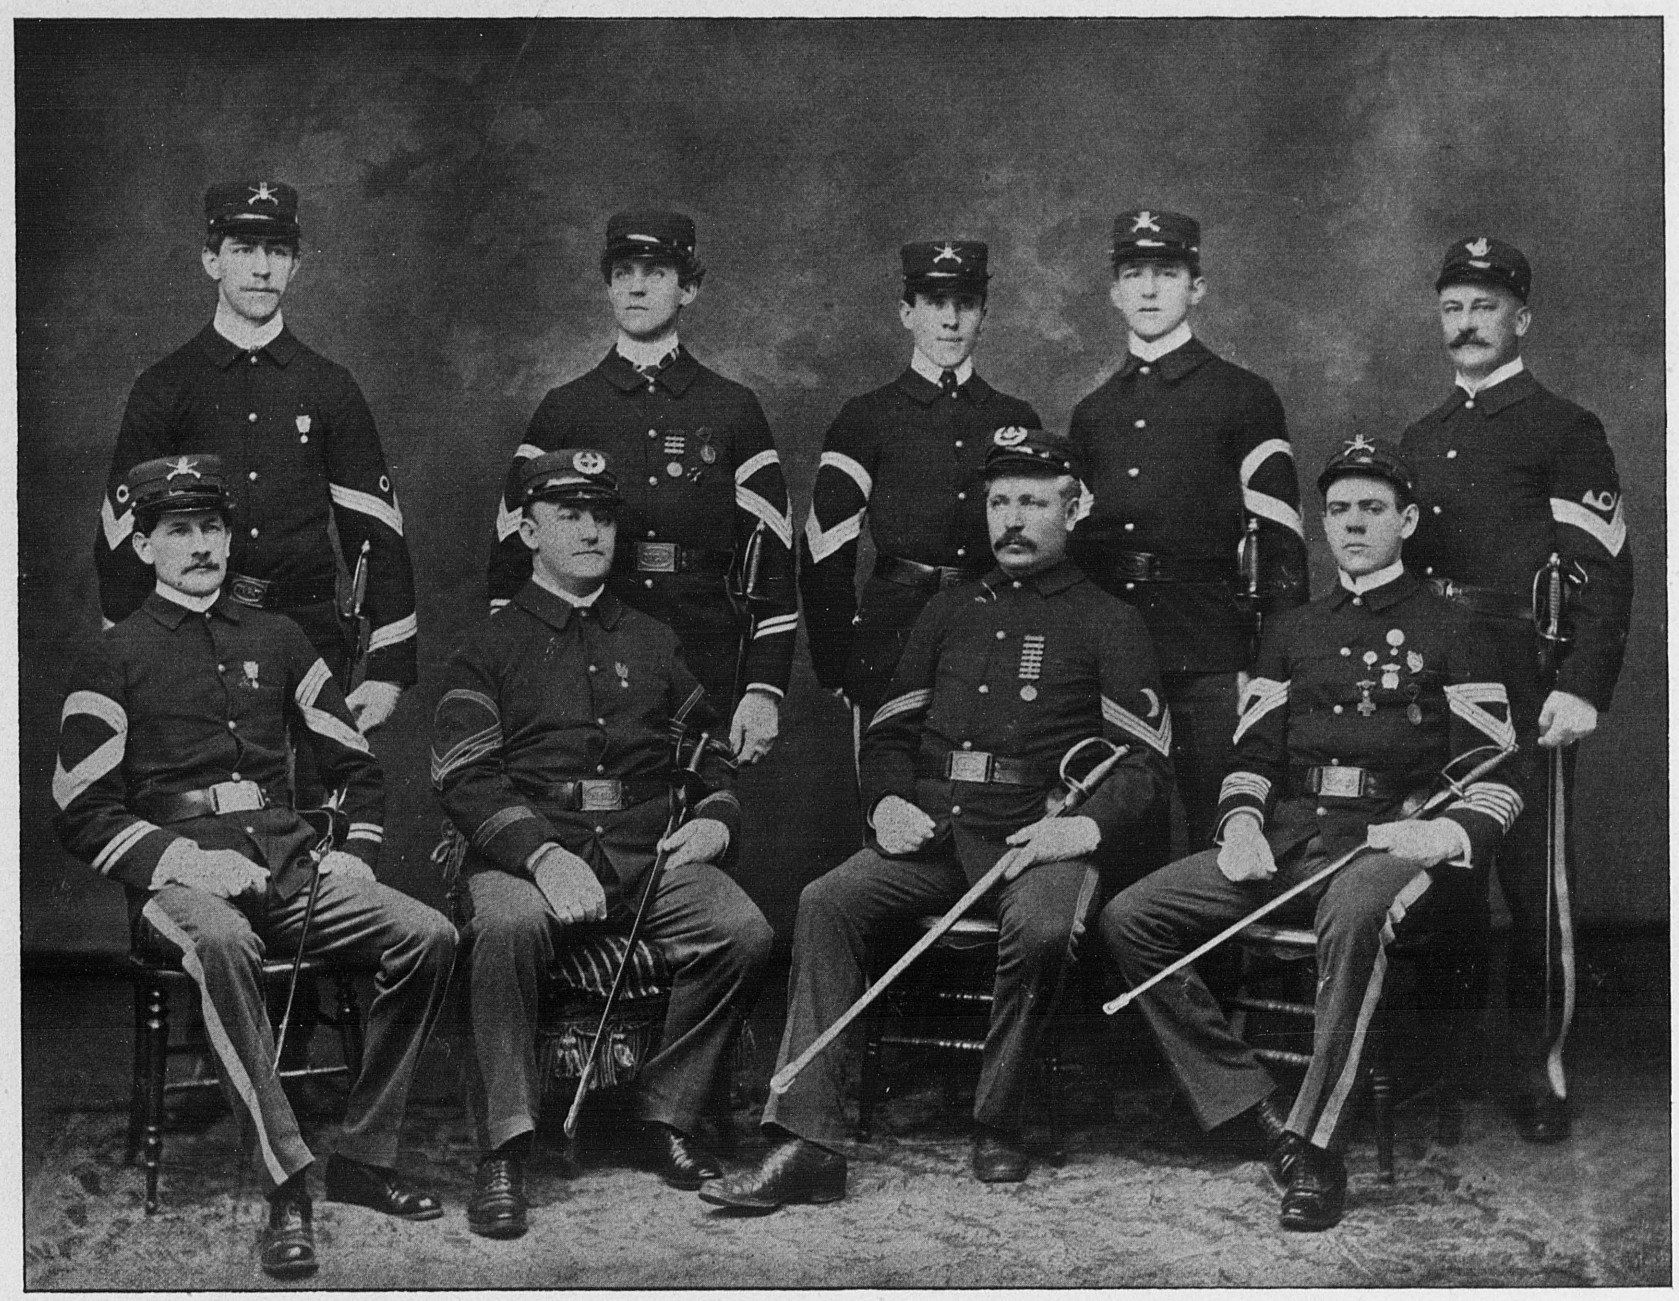
A. J. and P. J. CASEY

A. J. and P. J. Casey, members of the decoration and reception committee, are young men who are foremost in Scranton's leading enterprises. No persons have carved out for themselves a more distinctively prominent place in the category of the electric city's greatness. They won through merit and energy. As citizens and business men of great success there are none, even in progressive Scranton, who excel the Casey brothers. Their march up the roadways of progress is constant, they go evenly and steadily. They weigh and consider before acting. Before either of them ever saw Scranton there were many here who had means and were actively engaged in the mercantile business. They were men of recognized capacity and regarded as persons of superior foresight. They talked wisely about Scranton's future and predicted that real estate had reached its highest figure. They argued that this locality would have to depend upon coal mining and iron manufacture, and as they were uncertain and could not give steady employment Scranton would have to remain at a standstill. The Casey boys, as they were and are popularly known, saw Scranton towering into metropolitan population. They felt it was to be a great centre of business for the fast coming population that was building up, and gradually acquired ownership of the most available property they could buy. And to-day they stand out preeminently as wide awake real estate men. Among their many property possessions are the magnificent Lyceum Theatre and the commodious Academy of Music.



MR. T. J. FOSTER

NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, 13TH INFANTRY.



NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, 13TH INFANTRY

The Thirteenth Regiment non-commissioned staff is made up as follows:

Regimental Sergeant Major, John M. Edwards; Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant, W. S. Gould; Regimental Commissary Sergeant, Harry Heermans; Hospital Steward, Jos. F. Baumeister; Principal Musician, Robert J. Bauer; Color Sergeant, Charles Sickler; Battalion Sergeant Majors, Richard J. Bourke, Edward Freas, Frank X. Wassman.

S. M. John M. Edwards enlisted in May, 1893, in "F" Company, of the old regiment. Being an enthusiast he soon won promotion, being a Sergeant when the regiment ceased to be a State organization. He was appointed Commissary Sergeant of the Eleventh Regiment. Upon the reorganization of the Thirteenth he was continued and finally promoted to his present position.

Quartermaster Sergeant Gould has the proud distinction of being the oldest member in point of continuous service in the regiment. He enlisted in 1886, and during his fifteen years' service he has been a member of companies C, D and K. Since the above group was photographed he has been elected First Lieutenant of Company "K," a well-deserved promotion for this faithful guardsman. He was a member of the regimental team at Mt. Gretna in 1900.

Commissary Sergeant Heermans is another old guardsman, originally a member of Company H. He was appointed Color Sergeant in 1893 and served until 1897. Later he re-enlisted in Company F, and was appointed Commissary Sergeant, Armorer and Range Master in 1900. He was also a member of the Regimental Team in 1900.

Hospital Steward Baumeister has been identified with the Guard for many years, in the Ninth and Thirteenth Regiment. He was made Hospital Steward in 1894. In his position he has brought the Hospital Corps of the Regiment up to a high point of efficiency, and boasts of having the best detachment in the State.

Principal Musician Bauer needs no introduction, his reputation as a bandmaster is established. He is the leader of the famous Bauer's band and orchestra, recently enlisted, and now known as Bauer's Thirteenth Regiment Band.

Color Sergeant Sickles enlisted in Company D in 1892. He was made Color Sergeant when the Eleventh Regiment was organized, and continued when the Thirteenth was reorganized. He is an authority on ceremonies, therefore a valuable man on the staff.

Battalion Sergeant Majors R. J. Bourke, Edw. Freas and Frank X. Wassman, are men well fitted for their positions, all having had long experience in the Guard. The staff has organized an association known as the Non-Commissioned Staff Officers' Association of the Thirteenth Regiment. Their object is to promote the best interests of the Regiment, to establish good fellowship, and for the mutual, intellectual and social benefit of the members; to furnish the rooms assigned them in the new armory; to create a fund for the camp mess, and to be able to entertain fellow members of other non-commissioned staffs who may sojourn in the city. A large frame containing the photographs of every man who has served on the non-commissioned staff from the organization of the regiment, in 1877, to date, will soon be placed in their room. All non-commissioned, as well as the ex-non-commissioned, are cordially invited to visit their rooms.

OUR NAVAL RESERVE

The Navy Department having decided to depart this season from its previous custom of sending the different naval militias away in the summer for a week's training each on one of the larger vessels of the Navy, the various battalions along the coast will this year have to devise means of their own for giving instruction and practice to their members.

The course of training for our Pennsylvania Naval Force has just been decided upon, and will take the form of three cruises on the battalion's converted gun boat "Shearwater," every member of the battalion being required to take part in some one of the three trips.

The scheme of drills followed will be very similar to the excellent schedule prepared by the Department in previous years, in which sub-calibre practice played a prominent part. The battalion has also requisitioned for one-pounder ammunition, and expect with it to soon be smashing targets and waking the echoes out at sea.

The dates for the cruises are June 22-29, July 6-13, and July 20-27. The three senior officers of the battalion will each in turn take out the "Shearwater" for one of the trips, and the junior officers and petty officers and men will be assigned to duty with them as may be most convenient for all hands. The cruises will probably extend a hundred miles or so up or down the coast, as the preference of each commanding officer and the desire for society on shore and fresh provisions may suggest.

On the Fourth of July there will be a couple of navy cutter races in the Schuylkill Navy Regatta. One race will be between crews from the Navy Yard and the Russian battleship "Retvizan," and the other will be between two crews from the Pennsylvania Militia, and one or more from the New Jersey battalions, and both regulars and militia are already hard at work getting into training.

The militiamen in particular have lately been very full of professional and athletic enthusiasm. When the French cruiser was here recently the locals invited the visitors to a friendly contest on the U. S. S. St. Louis, with broad swords, which was won by the militiamen owing to the skill of Quartermasters Vail and Douredoure. Then the Frenchmen invited their new-found friends to a return competition on the cruiser with the foils, whereupon the honors of war changed and the militiamen "got filled more or less full of holes." And now the boys of the "Saratoga," having insinuated that they could do anything (except infantry drill) about as well as any one else, the air is full of challenges to sailing races, rowing races and swimming matches, and pretty soon new world's records will be established in these events.

The battalion has just lost one of its oldest and most efficient members, Chief Master-at-Arms Edw. H. Adler, who applied for his discharge because of the press of business duties.

The new "Jimmy Legs," Alexander P. Montgomery, is also one of the oldest members and has, like Adler, the happy faculty of seeing that discipline is strictly enforced while retaining at the same time the respect and liking of the men.

CHEAP PAN-AMERICAN TRIP.

$9 00 Coach Excursions to Buffalo via the Philadelphia & Reading-Lehigh Valley Route.

The next coach excursion via above route will leave Reading Terminal, Thursday, June 20th, and running as it does by daylight through the scenic Lehigh and Wyoming Valleys, affords excursionists a magnificent view of the beautiful "Switzerland of America."

The tickets will be good only on train leaving Reading Terminal 10.30 A. M., June 20th, and good to return on all trains except "Black Diamond Express," up to and including June 26th. The tickets will be good for passage in either direction in regular passenger coaches only, and not accepted in parlor or sleeping cars.

For further information and rates for other and longer time excursions, consult ticket agents or address Edson J. Weeks, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

Now is the time for captains of the line and mess committees to confer with Bowker & Co. regarding the purchase of such little luxuries which the State does not supply. The prices are the lowest and the quality of the best. This firm has had an experience of several years in supplying the different commands and respectfully solicits a trial. The shipment of goods to Perkasie, Mt. Gretna and Crescent Springs will receive careful attention by E. A. Bowker & Co., N. E. cor. 13th and Market St., Phila.

Captain James Clinton Kenny, a popular officer of the Ninth Infantry, commands to-day one of the largest and most efficient infantry companies in the National Guard, and was Captain of Company "B," Ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, during the Spanish-American War.

Captain Kenny in civil life is the manager of L. C. Darte's Fire Insurance Agency, and has for several years held the secretaryship of the Wilkes-Barre Underwriters' Association. He has resided in the Wyoming Valley since childhood and is well-known in this section of the State.

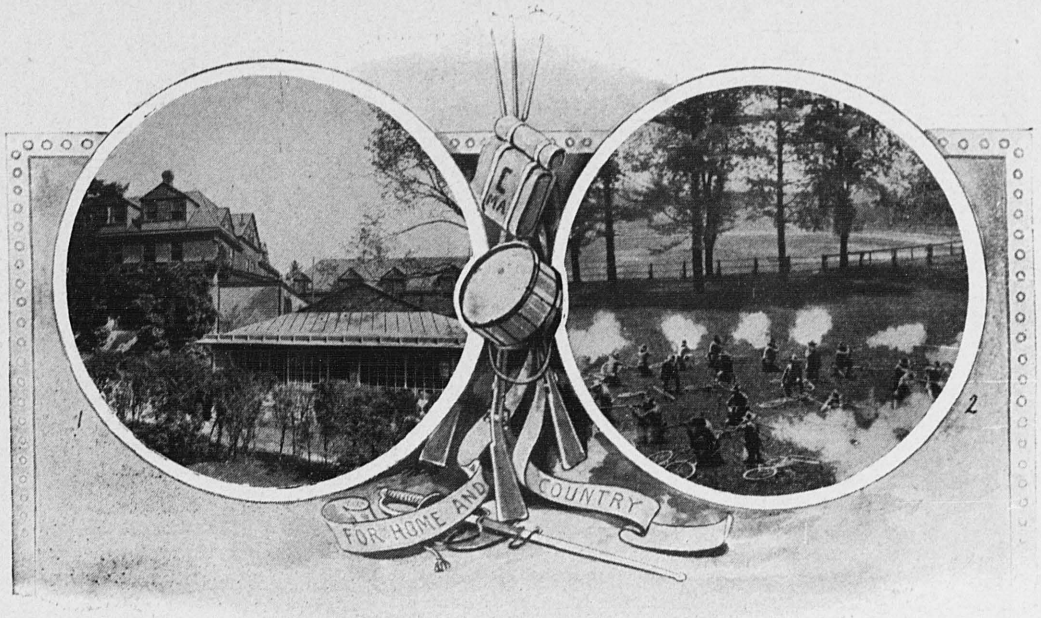
(NEAR PHILADELPHIA)

"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commend themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are a signed in order of application.
